

QUBT: Insiders Sold Before the Peak

A public-filing timeline of Form 4 insider sales, corporate events, and stock-price context

The pattern is simple: insiders sold heavily before the stock reached its 52-week high. Four insiders sold to zero reported ownership. The largest cluster came in a 5-day window in September 2025.

Sources: SEC Form 4 filings and public company filings. Price line uses monthly anchors + Form 4 transaction prices. Research visualization only; not investment advice.

This is not a price target and not an allegation of wrongdoing. It is an insider behavior and narrative research study based on public filings. All ownership references mean reported ownership in the filings reviewed.

Before a small-cap story reaches retail, who already took liquidity — and at what price range?

1. Narrative Timeline — Five Identities in 25 Years

2001 — Ticketcart, Inc.. Selling ink-jet cartridges online for HP, Canon, Epson, and Lexmark.

2007 — Innovative Beverage Group. Acquired a beverage company. Pivoted to wholesale distribution of non-alcoholic drinks, energy drinks, and snacks.

2013 — Ceased Operations. Ran out of money. Incurred significant losses.

2017 — Sued and Sold. A shareholder sued for fraud and breach of fiduciary duties. Lost the suit. Went into receivership. Robert Liscouski's Convergent Risk Group bought the shell for $155,000.

2018 — Quantum Computing Inc.. Redomiciled to Delaware. 200:1 reverse stock split. Changed name and ticker to QUBT. Announced "shift in business focus to quantum technology." No quantum technology existed in the company at this point.

2021 — Board Buildout. Robert Fagenson — former NYSE Floor Governor, NYSE Board Vice Chairman, 50+ years on Wall Street — appointed to board and Audit Committee chair. Explicitly described as advancing Nasdaq listing requirements.

2022 — QPhoton Acquisition. Acquired QPhoton Inc., a quantum photonics startup founded by Dr. Yuping Huang. Huang became Chief Quantum Officer. This was the company's first contact with actual quantum technology.

2024 — Audit Crisis. BF Borgers auditor found guilty of misconduct. Replaced with BPM LLP. Material adjustments to 2022-2023 financials. Going concern warnings since 2023.

2025 — Luminar Semiconductor. Signed $110M all-cash agreement to acquire Luminar Semiconductor Inc. from bankrupt Luminar Technologies. Photonic components, patents, engineering team.

2026 — Acquisitions Closed. Luminar Semi and NuCrypt LLC (quantum communications) both completed. Revenue jumped 9,364% in Q1 2026 (from near zero, driven by acquired revenue).

The company story kept changing. The Form 4 window shows when insiders chose to take liquidity relative to that changing story.

2. Insider Map

Yuping Huang — CEO / Chief Quantum Officer / 10%+ Owner

QPhoton founder. Joined via 2022 merger. The only person in QUBT's history with actual quantum technology credentials. Largest individual insider seller: 1.7M shares sold for $21.9M total between March-September 2025.

Robert B. Fagenson — Director / Vice Chairman / Audit Committee Chair

Former NYSE Floor Governor. NYSE Board of Directors (elected 1993), eventually Vice Chairman. Managing partner of Fagenson & Co., one of the largest specialist firms on the NYSE trading floor, for 37 years (1970-2007). Vice Chairman of National Holdings Corp. Appointed to QUBT board February 2021, explicitly to help the company meet Nasdaq listing requirements. Sold 100% of his holdings — 100,000 shares at $15.56 — on September 9, 2025.

Christopher Boehmler — Former CFO

Sold 318,885 shares for $5.5M in June 2025 (85%+ of holdings). Exited at $16.85-$20.00 price range.

Michael Turmelle — Director

Sold 200,986 shares for $2.8M on June 9, 2025. Reduced reported ownership to zero.

Javad Shabani — Director

Sold across two tranches: May 2025 ($11.66) and September 2025 ($15.28). Reduced reported ownership to zero.

Pouya Dianat — Chief Revenue Officer

Sold 17,175 shares on August 25, 2025 at $15.53. Reduced reported ownership to zero.

"Zeroed out" / "reduced to zero" means the reviewed filing showed 0 reported shares after that transaction. It is not a statement that the individual left the company or terminated all economic exposure.

3. Form 4 Selling Timeline

Date	Insider	Role	Price	Shares	Value	Ownership After
2025-03-25	Huang Yuping	CQO, 10%	$8.48	200,000	$1.70M	24,051,256
2025-05-19	Huang Yuping	CQO, 10%	$11.70	500,000	$5.85M	21,236,906
2025-05-19	Shabani Javad	Director	$11.66	39,973	$466K	0
2025-06-09	Boehmler C.	CFO	$16.85	272,445	$4.59M	47,565
2025-06-09	Turmelle M.	Director	$14.18	200,986	$2.85M	0
2025-06-12	Boehmler C.	CFO	$20.00	46,440	$929K	351,152
2025-08-25	Dianat Pouya	CRO	$15.53	17,175	$267K	0
2025-09-04	Huang Yuping	CEO, 10%	$14.42	1,000,000	$14.41M	21,287,718
2025-09-05	Shabani Javad	Director	$15.28	37,474	$573K	0
2025-09-09	Fagenson R.	Director	$15.56	100,000	$1.56M	0
2026-01-07	Begliarbekov M.	COO	$11.85	2,860	$34K	24,240
2026-03-10	Roberts C.B.	CFO, GC	$7.85	78,262	$615K	1,123,038

Total insider selling: ~$33.8M across 12 transactions. Four insiders reduced reported ownership to zero. Highlighted rows show the September cluster.

The September Cluster

Between September 4-9, 2025 — a 5-day window — three insiders sold approximately $16.5M. CEO Huang sold 1M shares ($14.42M). Director Shabani sold his remaining 37K shares ($573K) and reduced reported ownership to zero. Director Fagenson sold all 100K shares ($1.56M) and reduced reported ownership to zero.

The stock was at ~$15 during the cluster. It reached $25.84 three weeks later (Oct 3, 2025). By March 2026 it had fallen to $6.18.

4. Event Alignment

Pre-selling phase (Q1 2025). Huang starts selling at $8.48 in March. No major company announcements. Selling into a flat market.

Acceleration phase (May-June 2025). Huang accelerates to 500K shares. Shabani and Turmelle sell out entirely. CFO Boehmler sells 85% of holdings across two transactions at $16.85-$20.00. The stock is climbing. No insider purchases.

The cluster (September 2025). CEO Huang sells 1M shares — his largest single transaction. Fagenson sells 100% of his holdings. Shabani sells remaining shares. Heaviest insider selling window in the reviewed dataset.

Peak and decline (Oct 2025 - Mar 2026). Stock reaches $25.84 on October 3 — three weeks after the cluster. Then declines steadily to $6.18 by March 2026.

Luminar Semi announcement (Dec 2025). $110M acquisition announced. Next narrative shift: photonics + semiconductor + manufacturing. Insiders had already sold.

Post-acquisition selling (Q1 2026). New CFO Roberts sells at $7.85. COO Begliarbekov sells token amount at $11.85.

5. Insider Exit Reference Zone

Based on the core insider selling activity (excluding the earliest $8.48 trade and the latest $7.85 trade):

Core insider exit range: $11.66 – $15.56

This is where the majority of insider value was extracted. Six of the twelve transactions occurred within this range. It is a behavioral reference zone, not a price target, buy signal, or sell signal.

As of May 2026, QUBT trades at ~$10.51 — below the core insider exit zone.

6. Narrative Hypothesis

QUBT's pattern across its 25-year history is consistent: acquire a new identity, rename, re-story, attract capital, repeat.

The current chapter — photonic quantum computing + semiconductor acquisition — follows the same structural logic as every previous pivot. The company acquired its way into the quantum space (QPhoton, 2022), then acquired deeper (Luminar Semi, NuCrypt, 2026). Each acquisition brings real technology, real patents, and a new vocabulary (photonics, lithium niobate, edge inference, quantum communications).

The Luminar Semi acquisition is structurally interesting: buying a subsidiary out of bankruptcy for $110M means real manufacturing infrastructure at a discount. This is not nothing. The question is whether the narrative ("quantum + photonics + semiconductor + AI edge") is a business strategy or a capital markets strategy.

The insider behavior pattern suggests the latter. When the CEO sells $21.9M, the CFO sells 85% of holdings, and the NYSE veteran on the board zeroes out his entire position — all before the stock peaks — the capital markets signal is clear.

7. Research Conclusion

Designation: Narrative-driven company with real technology acquisitions.

QUBT is not a fraud. It has real technology (QPhoton's photonic systems, Luminar's semiconductor components, NuCrypt's quantum communications). It has real revenue ($3.7M in Q1 2026). It has $1.4B in cash.

But the insider behavior pattern — sustained, heavy selling across multiple insiders, with several board members and officers exiting to zero reported ownership, all occurring before the stock's 52-week high — indicates that the people closest to the company valued their stock significantly below where the market eventually priced it.

The core insider exit zone ($11.66-$15.56) is the reference frame. If QUBT trades significantly above this zone without fundamental changes that insiders are willing to hold through, the risk of another drawdown is elevated.

Watch for: Whether any insider starts buying at current levels. That would be a meaningful signal reversal. So far, zero insider purchases in the dataset.

The central question this framework asks: before a small-cap story reaches retail, who already took liquidity — and at what price range?

Disclaimer. This report is for research and educational purposes only. It is not financial, investment, legal, tax, or accounting advice. It does not allege fraud, illegal insider trading, market manipulation, coordination, or wrongdoing by any person or company. All ownership references are based on reported ownership in public filings reviewed for this dataset. A sale to 0 reported shares does not mean the individual left the company or terminated all economic exposure. All data should be independently verified against primary filings and market data.

Data sources: SEC EDGAR Form 4, 8-K, DEF 14A filings. OpenInsider.com. Corporate press releases. Price data approximate and illustrative.